Abstract

Systems and methods employable, for example, in performing various operations in a network environment (e.g., a peer-to-peer environment). Such operations can include, for example, searching for downloadable entities, conveying information regarding available entities, conveying information regarding nodes, handling node registration, handling node deregistration, handling node deactivation, handling node activation, performing reclustering, and/or the like.